WHAT MILWAUKEE STANDS FOR

In January, 1919, a committee of army officers requested Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, to withdraw from the committee in charge of the city's reception to returned soldiers because he had presided over a Socialist meeting which endorsed Victor Berger and other persons whose actions and words were inimical to the United States in war. Mayor Hoan refused and was howled down at the official greeting to the service men.

In May, 1919, Mayor Hoan denied a request of the American Legion to stop a meeting of the I. W. W. in Milwaukee.

In September, 1919, Mayor Hoan insolently refused to invite the king of the Belgians to visit Milwaukee.

In October, 1919, Mayor Hoan assailed congress for electing Victor Berger and predicted that Eugene V. Debs would be the next Socialist candidate for president of the United States.

In April, 1920, Mr. Hoan is re-elected mayor of Milwaukee on the Socialist ticket against a candidate supported by a fusion of other parties.

Undoubtedly, the triumph of Mr. Hoan at the polls is evidence that a majority of the voters of Milwaukee stand for the same things that he stands for. The rest of the country is fortunate in having such full information as to what these things are.

If we had many cities like Milwaukee, we might well say "God help America."

Fortunately, we have few, and are finding them out. Eventually we shall mop them up.

A VICTORY FOR THE BARNACLES

Hohman street, Hammond's most congested thoroughfare which ought to be at least 100 feet wide will probably now never be widened. The matter has been under discussion for some time and at one stage was very favorably considered but it was permitted to fall into a deep slumber.

The question was again brought up on Friday before the Board of Public Works and it was soon made a football that everybody took a kick at. Those opposing the petition raised objections to any widening of the street at this time because of the high prices of building material and labor.

It is time that prices are lamentably higher, but will they be any lower, and won't the time come when they will be still higher and Hohman street still more congested and impassable than it is now?

The trouble with a lot of public improvement propositions in Hammond has always been, "Oh, let it alone, sufficient for the day is the evil thereof." Many people are content to have the city forever a town of 25,000 and care nothing about its growth. As long as they make a little money and have enough to live on the future of the city can go hang, as far as they are concerned.

There never will be a time when the opportunity to widen Hohman street could be better afforded than the present and everybody who knows anything about city building knows that it is so.

Hammond would be a fine place if some of its prominent mossbacks and barnacles could be eliminated but as it is, they are quite content to throw a monkey wrench in the machinery whenever they get the opportunity. They are the minority who don't care how the majority suffers.

JOHN BULL FOR HOOVER

Great Britain's interest in the election of an American president is thus indicated by the Manchester, London, "Guardian":

"The question of who is the next president matters infinitely more to Europe and the world than the date of the treaty's ratification or the character of the reservations. . . . Mr. Hoover's election would signify permanence in the American relationship to Europe."

But it happens that the people of the United States are fully capable of selecting their own chief executives without any help in London.

IT'S REAL MUSIC

We wonder if the grand opera season that is going on in your back yard means anything to you or not and whether you know that there are two performances daily one about sun-up and the other later in the afternoon.

The concerts are innumerable and there are one or two artists going all day long. The chorus is a large and splendid one, many of its members being singers of wonderful ability, wrens, martins, song sparrows, chimney swift and many others who are here on passport.

The robin usually opens the morning opera with his wonderful solo "Cheerily, cheerily, cheer up," a performance which does not receive the recognition it should on account of its familiarity.

The aria of the oriole is short, but most effective always. The ordinary sparrows make a lot of fuss over their part in the general ensemble and show some untrained but powerful voices.

We wish the bluejay had taken a course in voice culture because he sings horribly now and anon and is a source of much disgust to the sweeter soloists.

The cat bird is the comedian and his gurgles, squeals and meows are funny, but we would much rather hear him sing according to score which he certainly can if he wants.

Some of the most enthusiastic little choristers almost drown out the tiny notes of the wren, but there is no one who wants to stop them.

The concerts were sadly interrupted by the recent heavy snow and some of the southern visitors had no time to sing, so busy they were looking for worms.

The supply is understood to be much improved now and the grand opera season for which we all ought to have a thankful heart will now go on uninterrupted.

A WEST VIRGINIAN wants $250 for two dogs he claims can locate stills. There are lots of men perfectly willing to try to locate stills for nothing and to pay for the product after they have found them.

HOW INTER-CHURCH MOVEMENT WAS BORN AND WHY

Historically the Interchurch World Movement of North America is the logical outgrowth of a tendency of the national boards in each denomination to form working alliances among themselves in which each board shall preserve its identity and control its own personnel and treasury.

In former times, the home mission society, the foreign mission society, the church extension society and the various philanthropic and eleemosynary agencies of any denomination conducted their affairs independently of one another. Each surveyed its own restricted territory, prepared a budget of money and workers for its own purposes and made its own appeal to its constituency for support.

This could only mean that these agencies were more or less in competition with one another, that there was waste and duplication of work and money, and that among their all some work was neglected and some denominational resources were entirely overlooked. Because of their specialized training, the leaders of each agency regarded themselves as peculiarly fitted for their tasks and jealously regarded attempts at outside interference. After decades of such haphazard methods, the leaders of one denomination decided upon an experiment. They thought it would be possible for the agencies to get together for a common study of all the opportunities and resources of their brotherhood, to make out a unified budget of men and money. It was made clear that each constituent board should preserve complete autonomy.

When the board representatives met they found it possible to eliminate a great amount of organization expense. They ultimately worked out a budget and plan of campaign that was satisfactory to all. This resulted in the famous "Men and Millions Movement" of the Disciples of Christ, which brought in what was then considered the staggering sum of $6,300,000 for a five-year program. The members of the communion were so pleased with this business-like method of conducting affairs that they contributed even more generously than had been expected.

The Interchurch World Movement is simply a plan to do interdenominational work that the forward movements have done within the various communions. It means that every denominational budget will be made in the light of world needs instead of in the seclusion of incomplete information. It means that one denomination will not be in wasteful competition with another, because all the fellowships will have worked out their programs together.

The movement has nothing to do with organic church union or matters of creed or doctrine. Each constituent unit preserves complete autonomy and is bound only so far as it wishes to be bound.

An illustration of one thing the movement can do is to be found in a western community of 1,600 persons, in which thirteen denominations have been supporting separate churches with missionary funds, while an adjacent territory of 60,000 persons has only three churches. By seeing that all missionary boards are supplied with information in such cases, the movement will make possible a wiser distribution of funds.

Its first goal is to reduce unnecessary duplication and overlapping to a minimum and to bring about an intelligent division of labor in unoccupied fields. The movement is, at bottom, an attempt to put church business on the sound, rock-bottom business like foundations upon which the great commercial institutions of America are built.
